Mathematician Paul Halmos (1916-2006) is well-known and warmly remembered for many things, including his delight in snapping a photograph of nearly every mathematician he met during the 1950s through 1980s. From a collection digitized by the MAA, we focus on images illustrating (1) Halmos and his PhD advisor and fellow students, (2) the 1958 ICM, (3) women in mathematics, (4) functional analysis at Oberwolfach, and (5) mathematicians behind the Iron Curtain.
